Dear Don,

As my enclosed letter to Bob Bates indicates, after you left was a very disconcerting time. I think I mailed you a summary of the information I have on what seems to be an electronic bug planted in our home. Because I use a speakerphone it also becomes a wiretap and I can't imagine a legal one.

Makes me wonder if when there were entries when Jil and I were in the hospital or nursing home the slight physical damage that was done was a cover for the entries.

If I did not tell you, in addition to moving the overflow boxes in my office around and with that denying me recollection of what was where, there was slight damage to my typewriter. The first repair did not fix if but the second one did all that could be done without replacement of a broken part that cannot be replaced.

We enjoyed your visit. Make another soon!

Harold
